The company has contracted for 1000 telegraph poles, and fully one half of the crossties for the whole line have aiready been delivered by contractors. Within the next thirty days 1500 tons of rails will be received, which will be laid as fast as possible. The line will soon be completed. Commissioner Fink is said to estimate the loss to the trunk lines and their connections, by reason of the existing way of rates, at the work of the stockholders, who constitute a very considerable portion of the public, that the whole country is interested in seeing the wate stopped. The only way to put a stop to it is by the formation of the very system of pooling arrangements among the railway companies which the short-sighted "anti-monopolists" of the Turber stripe denounce. The great activity in railway building has created such a demand for laborers that railway companies have found it difficult to supply their needs. Large numbers of Chinamen have been imported for the railways on the Pacific coast, and the Northern Pacific company has put in operation the still better plan of brioging over colonies of emigrants from Sweeden, Norway and Demmark, who will settle along the lines of the road and help develop the country as well as furnish Isbor for railway construction. It is proposed to charter a special steamer to carry the immigrants, and great pains will be taken to transport them to their destination hefore they can be scattered or secured by competing interests. As an example: A ticket for two trunks weighing 500 pounds, for 500 miles, would be 300 nounds at 2c per pound, $6; a ticket for two trunks weighing 500 pounds, for 1000 miles, would be 300 pounds at 4c per pound, $12. through his efforts the attachment was dis-missed, he standing the costs. Mr. Carter missed, he standing the costs. Mr. Carter then took his property to St. Loui, where the vessel was completed and named the John A. Scudder. Scarcely had the last stroke of work been finished on her before she was again levied upon, this time at the instigation of John Baldwin. He obtained a judgment for $10,000 against the steamer, the debt originally srising on the hull, and considerable litigation ensued over this claim, and Carter finally securing a second trial, Baldwin abandoned the field. This all happened during 1873. The boat was then happened during 1873. running between St. Louis and New Orleans, and at the latter city, in 1876, she was for the third time attached. Mr. Carter bonded her out of the marshal's possession, and the expenses connected with the settlement of the case were large. All of these he had to bear, although, as he claims, the debts were against the huil. He wrote, he alleges, to Mack several times, but received but little satisfaction from him. He, therefore, instituted the suit to recover the amount of the costs and lawyers' fees in the two suits, which aggregate $6737 15. A peculiar feature of the trial will be that the lawyer for the defendant was the same who drew up the bond on which Mr. Carter is confident he can recover. It will be quite an event in legal history to see an attorney prove the weakness of his own handiwork.
